MURRAIN.—This infectious disease is prevailing to considerable extent in this neighborhood, and many fine cows have died from its ravages. Cattle should be well looked after, or the disease may become general.

RAIN .- Last Sunday saw an end of the destructive drougth which has prevailed in this section for several weeks past. On the evening of that day a steady, soaking rain set in, which never ceased until the Tuesday following. Late corn has been greatly benefitted, and crops generally improved thereby.

WAIT .- Speculators are going about buying cotton before it is gathered from the fields. We advise our readers to hold off to go up in the fall. We hear of sales be- and a half. ing made in Mississippi at 12 to 50 cents. Hold on to your cotton. The crop is very short and will fall far below estimates hereofore made.
